Fuelless Motor Puzzles Experts

Aviation Officer Says the Whole Thing is So Mysterious and Scintillating That It is Possible It Has the Appearance of Being a Fake.

New York, Feb. 27 (AP).—The "fuelless motor" was in New York today to be put under the general eye of electrical experts as a patent can be obtained. It has already mystified several men familiar with electricity. Major Thomas G. Langhorne, flight commander at Selfridge Field, Michigan, and leader of the first pursuit group, said at the Hotel Biltmore where he and Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and a party of friends are staying. Difficulty in obtaining a patent was found, he said, as the government patent department could find no classification for the motor. Patent attorneys, he said, have taken the matter in hand and as soon as a patent is obtained the motor probably will be tested under the supervision of experts of the Guggenheim Foundation for the promotion of aeronautics.

He denied that a company had been formed to produce the motor or that its practicability for use in airplanes had been proven.

Major Langhorne also denied that Colonel Lindbergh was in any way connected with the group which was backing the inventor, Lester J. Hendrickson of West Elizabeth, Pa.

"There are only Hendrickson, D. Barr Peat, his friend, Colonel Henry Breckinridge and myself," Major Langhorne said. "I put a little money into it and when we decided we ought to see some one about patenting I thought of Breckinridge, whom I know through Slim. Slim (Colonel Lindbergh) was my guest and I showed him the motor. That is all he has to do with it."

Colonel Breckinridge is a New York lawyer and was assistant secretary of war during President Wilson's first administration.

"The fact that Colonel Breckinridge is also Colonel Lindbergh's attorney gave rise to a lot of false rumors that Lindbergh was interested in this motor thing," Major Langhorne said.

The army officer, who said his only knowledge of electricity was what he learned in his first year at West Point, described the "fuelless motor" as a generator. He said the invention, which he called energy collector, gathered out of the air "power" which Hendrickson says he believes is energy generated by the rotation of the earth on its axis and around the sun.

Dr. Nikola Tesla, inventor of the induction motor and who recently patented plans for a "helicopter airplane," views the invention with skepticism. Dr. Tesla, who has spent many of his seventy-one years experimenting in taking energy from the heat of the sun, earth and air, said power obtained from these sources by a small motor "can only be measured in 'mouse' power."

"There is apart from lightning, no natural electrical source which could be exploited with the practical object of developing power in the amount required for the operation of machinery," he said.

Major Langhorne declared, however, that "the whole thing is so mysterious and scintillating that it is possible it has the appearance of being a fake."

FORD FLUYER THAT FAILED FOUND: FLIER PROBABLY DEAD

Sebastian, Fla., Feb. 27 (AP).—The Ford flyer plane which disappeared into the Atlantic ocean Saturday night off Melbourne, was towed ashore near here this morning. No trace was found of the body of Harry Brooks, who was piloting the plane when it disappeared.

The plane was badly damaged. One wing had been torn off by the waves, and the fabric of the other wing was stripped. The propeller was broken and the fuselage wrecked.

The plane was loaded on a truck and brought to Sebastian. Ford officials said it would be sent to Jacksonville. The search for Brooks' body continued with air planes looking over the sea coasts and beaches and boats searching the sea. Motorcycle officers patrolled the beaches. The sea, which prevented boats from going to the wrecked plane yesterday, continued rough.

STEFANSSON, ARCTIC EXPLORER, IN BELLEVUE

New York, Feb. 27 (AP).—Vilhjalmur Stefansson, Arctic explorer, has been admitted to Bellevue Hospital for diagnosis of an ailment, the exact nature of which was not disclosed. The New York Times, however, says it is understood the ailment, which is of a minor nature, was superinduced by a too persistent diet of fish, this article of food being the principal means of subsistence on his Arctic expeditions.

Los Angeles on Non-stop Flight

Should Reach Destination in Cuba This Evening If All Goes Well—Start Was Unannounced and Destination Secret.

Washington, Feb. 27 (AP).—The dirigible Los Angeles was south of Cuba and proceeding on her way to the Canal Zone at 6:49 a. m. today, the navy department was informed by radio from the craft.

Los Angeles Log, Sunday

6:15 A. M.—Left Lakehurst, N. J., for France Field, Canal Zone.

8:00 A. M.—Reported over New York harbor. Believed to have flown northward first to disguise her real destination.

12:06 P. M.—East of Cape Charles, Va.

4:00 P. M.—240 miles out from shore, between Savannah and Jacksonville.

8:00 P. M.—300 miles east of Daytona, Fla.

Monday

1:05 A. M.—Passed over Nassau, British Bahamas.

Far past the midway mark, the dirigible Los Angeles glided over southern waters today on an unheralded non-stop training flight from Lakehurst, N. J., to France Field, Panama.

Starting unannounced from her New Jersey station at 6:15 yesterday morning, the big lighter-than-air craft was attempting her longest journey since she was flown from Germany as the ZR-3.

The trip, approximately 2,000 miles and mostly over water should be accomplished, barring motor trouble and bad weather, in about 35 hours provided the ship maintains the better than 50-mile an hour pace she set for herself for the first half. Nassau, British Bahamas, about midway, was passed at 1:05 this morning. 18 hours and 50 minutes after she left Lakehurst. On this basis it was estimated she should reach France Field around 8 o'clock tonight.

Moffatt Tunnel Open to Traffic

Denver, Feb. 27 (AP).—A shorter transcontinental rail route was inaugurated today with the completion of the first regular train service through the Moffatt Tunnel, west of here.

The tunnel was formally opened yesterday when four sections of a special train operated by the Denver and Salt Lake Railroad carried 2,500 persons from the east to the west port, following a ceremony in which Colorado and Utah officials participated.

Started in 1923, in conformity to the plans of the late David H. Moffatt, pioneer western railroad builder, the tunnel was completed at a cost of approximately $18,000,000. It is 6.2 miles long and elevates the Continental Divide at an elevation of about 9,200 feet, more than 4,000 feet below the summit of James Peak.

BYRD'S NEW AIRPLANE BEING GIVEN A TEST

Miller Field, N. Y., Feb. 27 (AP).—The big tri-motor plane built for Commander Richard E. Byrd's expedition to the South Pole took the air today against adverse winds for a test flight to Detroit.

Floyd Bennett, who accompanied Byrd on his flight to the North Pole, Bert Balchen, a member of the crew on Byrd's transatlantic flight, Thomas Mulroy, who will be a member of the South Pole expedition, and Charles Reid, a photographer, were aboard.

The flight will be the first long trip for the plane, which has been put through preliminary tests during the past two weeks. Bennett was at the controls at the takeoff.

Lindbergh when the flying colonel stopped in Panama on his "good-will" flight.

Chicago Bandits Under Arrest

Police Recover Part of Loot and Say They Have Confession by One of the Prisoners—Robbery Was Carefully Planned and Rehearsed by Aid of a Toy Train.

Chicago, Feb. 27 (AP).—Police today announced the solution of the $133,000 mail train robbery at Evergreen Park Saturday morning, the arrest of five of the seven bandits and the recovery of a large part of the stolen money.

William O'Connor, deputy commissioner of police, after spending most of the night of the case, said he would turn over to the postal inspectors for prosecution these men:

"Limpie" Charlie Cleaver, at whose home was found $17,125 and $600 in bonds; William Donovan, who police say plotted the robbery with Cleaver; William Carmody, Angelo Francisco and Joseph Lamm, the latter proprietor of a pool room where members of the gang were said to have gathered.

The deputy commissioner said he had detailed confessions from Cleaver and Donovan, together with additional information involving them in two other recent robberies—the Ravenswood National Bank holdup in which $80,000 was taken, and the holdup of Joseph Fekete, mortgage banker.

Fekete partly identified Cleaver, Carmody and Francisco as men who robbed him February 3. Bonds found at Cleaver's home were identified as having been taken from the Fekete bank.

O'Connor has been in active charge of the investigation from the moment word was received that the Grand Trunk train carrying payroll money to the two Harvey banks had been held up. He did not reveal the exact amount of money recovered.

"It is a great deal more than the $17,125 he found in Cleaver's home," he said, "but the exact sum will not be announced until we have completed our work."

He would not discuss the police report that a raid on the far south side early today, in which three women were arrested, had led to the finding of $18,000 of the stolen money.

No robbery in police records was more carefully planned or executed than this, O'Connor said. The first step was to obtain information as to how and when the money would be shipped. This was followed by daily trips over the Grand Trunk to Evergreen Park by one of the plotters—Donovan, the police say. Thus the plotters familiarized themselves with the routine of the train crew.

A toy train, having the same number of cars as the train that was to be robbed, was used by members of the gang to perfect every detail.

On Saturday morning the train left Chicago with the consignment of $133,000 by two Chicago banks for two banks in Harvey. Among the passengers, according to the police reconstruction of the robbery, was Donovan. It was Donovan, they say, who pulled the emergency cord which brought the train to a stop.

So far-sighted were the robbers that they had planted a cache of dynamite under the platform of the lonely St. Maria Station in Evergreen Park, to be used if the explosives carried by the men proved inadequate for blowing open the mail car door and safe. The cache was found last night by members of the bomb squad.

Escape was made in a car driven, the police charge, by Carmody.

The division of the loot took place shortly after the robbery, according to information the police got in the Saturday night and Sunday questioning of 25 men and women under arrest. There were seven shares of $17,900 each. The extra $14,600, the Donovan and Cleaver confession were understood to have explained, was set aside as a legal fund.

FORMER WORLD CHAMPION BILLIARDIST IS DEAD

New York, Feb. 27 (AP).—Robert L. Cannefax, former world champion three cushion billiardist, died today at Phoenix, Ariz., according to word received by friends in this city.

Until ill health forced his retirement from the game two years ago, Cannefax had been a championship figure at three cushion billiards for fully ten years.

He first won the world championship in 1924 but lost it to John Layton of Sedalia, Mo. After Tim Denton of Kansas City, Mo., had taken a turn at the top Cannefax regained the title in 1925, only to lose it to Layton and then regain it in 1924. That year Cannefax defeated Layton in the final of the championship round robin.

Cannefax continued to rule the three cushion field in 1925 except for a brief period when Frank Teterski, Schenectady veteran, staged a comeback. Cannefax was challenged in 1925 by Willie Hoppe, then the halcyon king, to a special three cushion match but it was never held.

Otto Reisel of Philadelphia succeeded Cannefax as three cushion champion.

Forest Week Proclaimed By the President

Washington, Feb. 27 (AP).—The week of April 22 to 28 was set apart today in a proclamation by President Coolidge for nationwide observance of American forest week by "public discussion of our forests and of what must be done to safeguard and restore them."

The President emphasized particularly the need for suppressing the forest fire evil, and pointed out the benefits that will accrue from making the forest lands of the United States fully productive of continuous timber crops. He added:

"We already have made a beginning in forest renewal, but the task is stupendous, and we should permit no satisfaction over what has been done to blind us to the magnitude of what remains to be done."

"Now, therefore, I Calvin Coolidge, president of the United States of America, do hereby designate and set aside as American Forest Week the week beginning April 22 and ending April 28, in this year of 1928. I recommend to the governors of the various states that they also designate this week for special observance by all our people; and that where practicable and not in conflict with law or custom, Arbor Day be observed during the course of the same week. I urge that during that week all citizens and appropriate organizations—including public officials, legislators, business organizations, educators, editors, clergymen, landowners and others—give thought to the preservation and wise use of our forests, to the end that energetic forest policies will be adopted in all communities."

River Steamers Now Running

Navigation on the Hudson river between this port and New York is now in full swing as far as steamer service is concerned. The Poughkeepsie, of the Central Hudson Line, steamed into the Rondout creek Friday night and left here for New York Sunday morning. The steamer Newburgh of the same line reached Kingston on Sunday and left here for New York city this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Owing to the cold weather of Saturday and Sunday considerable ice formed in the river between this city and Poughkeepsie but the big steamers of the Central Hudson Line had no difficulty in breaking a channel through the ice fields.

In a message to the Daily Express, Dame Ellen quoting the saying of Autolycus, "A merry heart goes all the day," and proceeds: "Perhaps that is why I have managed to juggle for eighty years. I am little tired now, but not too tired to smile at kind friends who have not forgotten me."

Tear Gas Used to Dislodge Lunatic

Armed With a Shotgun, Maniac Threatened to Shoot Half the People in Town and Held Off Police for Ten Hours.

Union, N. Y., Feb. 27 (AP).—Tear gas ended the ten hour siege of a country state and city police before the home of an armed maniac in Canadota, two miles southeast of here, early this morning.

After a ten hour police revolver tear gas battle, arguments and bullets had drawn no response except shotgun fire from the barricaded man, Edward Goff, 34, state armory, author, and a party of friends were called upon to provide two cans of military tear gas which were limited in the lower hall of the house.

Leaving his gun behind, Goff quickly ran out of the back door to fall, gasping, to the ground. He was pinioned by a half dozen officers who found their quarry was too weak to do anything but cry.

He was taken to Union State Hospital, where he has twice before been a patient.

During the siege which started when Goff told relatives he would "shoot half of the people in the town" as they passed his home on their way to work, officers several times narrowly escaped the shotgun fire of the maniac as they tried to creep into the house.

Goff stood at the top of the only stairs to the second floor and swept the front hall and door with his gun range. Goff had fired all his shells, a "bag full," officers said when he surrendered. The last one was sent into the inside of the front door just before he laid down his gun to kivo himself up.

Examination of the interior of the impromptu fort showed that Goff had missed up the room of his brother, Roy, of whom he seemed to have been jealous, and had fired shot through his windows. Roy left home when Edward became unmanageable Saturday, and had not returned since. The brothers lived with their father in the house.

Dog Catchers Caught Five

The official dog catchers of the city captured five unmuzzled dogs roaming the streets on Saturday, and placed them in the pound in Forest Park. The fact that a dog has on a muzzle that is not fastened in place will not prevent the animal being taken by the dog catchers. Last week a dog wearing a muzzle which was hanging on its neck was caught, and the owner was forced to pay the usual fees to redeem the animal from the pound. The dog catchers were again working today, and as there are still a large number of unmuzzled dogs roaming the city expect to capture some of them.

Mannerchor Had Birthday Party

Kingston's Oldest Singing Society Celebrated Its Sixtyeth Anniversary With Banquet at Mannerchor Hall on Sunday Evening.

The Kingston Mannerchor, Kingston's oldest singing society, celebrated its sixtieth anniversary Sunday evening with a banquet at Mannerchor Hall on Strand and Havens streets. Joseph Mack, the only charter member of the society still living, was unable to attend the celebration as he is confined to his home on Albany street by illness.

The banqueting tables had been set in the large hall and shortly after 6 o'clock Sunday evening the members of the organization and the invited guests began to gather. When everything was in readiness the members and guests were called to the tables by President Charles Corson of the society, and while the guests were seated the members of the society sang the welcome song in German, led by Professor Jacob Stumpf, the director of the society. Prof. Stumpf has been seriously ill, but recovered in time to attend the celebration.

The banquet had been prepared by the ladies of the Mannerchor, who also served it, and an exceptionally fine menu was enjoyed of which the main item was chicken with all the trimmings.

During the evening Mannerchor's orchestra rendered a fine musical program.

Speakers of the Evening

At the close of the banquet Fred Scholmer, president as toastmaster, called on President Corson, who delivered the address of welcome. President Corson outlined the purpose that animated the Mannerchor since its inception sixty years ago, that of sociability. He paid a high tribute to the work of Joseph Block, the only living charter member, who had served the society as its treasurer for thirty-five years. He also paid a tribute to Peter Foss, who for eleven years had served as secretary, and had also held the office of president of the organization. He said that good deeds should be rewarded and therefore both Mr. Block and Mr. Foss would be made honorary members for life, which meant that they would be entitled to all benefits to be derived from the organization but would not have to pay dues. He welcomed the guests present and hoped that they would thoroughly enjoy the hospitality of the Mannerchor.

Jacob Schantz, a former president of the society, spoke briefly and congratulated the society on its anniversary. The last speaker of the evening was Max Fuchsle, who spoke in German.

The banquet was an event that will long be remembered by those present. During the evening a flashlight photograph was taken.

The present officers of the Mannerchor Social Mannerchor are: President, Charles Corson; vice president, Albert Krosch; treasurer, Jacob Scholmer; corresponding secretary, Ernest Banger; financial secretary, Fred Schulzinger; and librarian, Fred Ebel. The musical director is Prof. Jacob Stumpf.

You do it without thinking, but this time—

THINK.

When you turn on the ignition  and touch your foot to the starter  you send the electric current flowing through the starter switch  providing the power to turn the starting motor  which engages the starting gear with the engine fly-wheel, turning over the crankshaft in its bearings  and the camshaft  which works the tappets,  8, 12, or 16 of them, to open and close the valves, as the 4, 6 or 8 pistons, joined to the crankshaft by connecting rods through the same number of wrist-pin bearings  move down to draw in the charges of gasoline and up against compression—till the spark fires  and the pistons give their first hot thrusts of power downward through the connecting rods  to the engine main shaft, and the gears spinning in the transmission housing, ready for "clutch out" and your shift into low, to intermediate—and then to high.

Every movement depends on oil—on correct lubrication. It's an important responsibility. The means are provided in the design of the car, the rest is for you to decide. Think—and get good oil—

Chicago—By the light of a beacon on a building in the loop it will be possible to read a paper 30 miles away, it is believed by the donor, Elmer G. Sperry of Brooklyn. He has given to the city a searchlight of 1,200,000,000 candle power which will flash rays 250 miles or more to guide flyers. It will be the largest aeronautical beacon in the world.

New York—The health of women workers has been found to equal that of men, at least, in fact, says Dr. Rosalie S. Morton, who made a test in stores, more men go to rest rooms for such things as headaches and indigestion.

The daytime snarling and buzzing was still in effect Saturday and Sunday. On Sunday it occupied about three fourths of the time—six minutes of snarling and an interlude of two minutes of good reception.

Ensemble Favored in New Costumes

Palm Beach Fashions Feature Wraps, Gowns of Harmonious Colors.

Once there were four seasons which were as clearly marked in the fashion world as elsewhere; but now there is a fifth; the Palm Beach season, which has a recognized place in the dress program of the year. Dressmakers, merchants and their army of clients who prepare in advance for spring, summer, autumn and midwinter increasingly look for something new and distinct to compose the outfits for the short but fashionable visit to the Southern resorts.

Whatever the itinerary, and wherever the smart set—for many spend the time in the pine woods or mountains or at the springs or golf resorts—the name Palm Beach covers the styles for the occasion. At the hotels and clubs women wear clothes of every description that suit a gentle climate. Parisians have long followed these customs in going to the European watering places and we on this side, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times, have added many beautiful styles for the purpose which have been created by artists in a especially to suit the tastes of American women.

Because the opening of the season in Southern resorts is varied by the condition of the weather, the showings carry a suggestion of warmth. Fur is emphasized in the latest news from Europe. Broadtail, brown shaved lamb, mink, sable, sealskin and chinchilla have important places in the new wraps, and the up-to-date novelties known as amber rabbit, gray seal and shaved goat appear in the occasional wraps designed to be worn over dresses of soft material.

As fur is no longer strictly a winter article, but is in style the year round, these furs, whether in wraps, neckpieces or trimmings, are included in the wardrobes of women who leave the North fully equipped as to dress for their Southern destination. One of the new coats made by a prominent Parisian house is a long one of leaf-brown velvet, cut straight and trimmed down the front. The hem is finished with a deep band of sable, as are the sleeves also. The wrap is designed to be worn over several different gowns, but is particularly suited for a certain one of beige georgette which is shown with self-toned embroidery trimmings, two rows of which mark its double waistline.

Many Types of Gowns. Gowns of many types have been especially designed for the Palm Beach season. Some have wraps to match or harmonize. Some conspicuously beautiful ensembles are shown. There is a gown of French blue and silver lame made to be worn for dinner or an informal supper-dance, which has with it a coat-wrap of a darker blue velvet trimmed heavily with gray fur. An evening dress of wild rose pink crepe de chine is made with a plain bodice and a skirt embroidered in a delicate pattern with rhinestones, and with it is a shawl of gold lace of the delicate weave of a cobweb.

An Elizabethan dress designed for the Palm Beach season is of red and gold liberty gauze brocade, the bodice being heavily encrusted with gilt creamy shade of beige. The bodice is cut high, with an overgarment, red-lapels in shape, which is brought down from one shoulder to fasten on the opposite hip. All around the top sides and bottom is a border embroidered in a conventional pattern with gilt thread.

A wrap to be worn with this gown is made of beige velours in a straight salman coat style, with wide sleeves and a cape lined with crepe de chine of the same shade. It is bordered all around with brown fur. Caret scores also in another ensemble of an entirely different type, which is characteristically for Palm Beach. It is for afternoon, to be worn for a promenade or on any informal out-of-doors occasion. It has a skirt of leaf-green flannel and a long circular cape. The bodice, which is attached to the skirt to make a one-piece dress, is of figured crepe de chine in which the pattern is blue, green and rose, is printed on a green and white background.

tern, in blue, green and rose, is printed on a green and white background. American stylists are indebted to several of the prominent French couturiers for some distinguished models intended for the Palm Beach season. Some of the most important of these are from Worth, who leans heavily toward the medieval style of costume in evening gowns. He has used this model successfully for a wedding dress, making it of silver lame combined with satin and tulle, and has repeated it in crepe satin for a conventional dinner gown. An informal revers with this frock of blue and white printed chiffon is to be worn with a long coat of navy blue wool georgette.

From this same comprehensive collection is shown a semi-sports suit of navy blue cloth, the short skirt of which is wrapped around the figure, draped on one hip and attached to a closely fitted sleeveless white blouse. Over this is to be worn a short bolero jacket trimmed with flat braid. It has short sleeves with white cuffs.

Some Almost Startling.

These are but a few models selected from the Worth collection, which is an important one for the Palm Beach type of clothes. Some are almost startling in effect. For example, in the evening gowns is to be seen the dress of the Siamese and Hindu dancing girls, a composition of gold and silver on silken gauze foundation with a bolero-bodice and sash to be wound around the hips.

Another Parisian designer, Jeanne Lanvin, whose gowns have an established vogue among American women, has also done a collection for Southern resort wear, which is equally suitable for the European or our own Riviera. Some of her most charming models are made of her favorite material, taffeta. Her familiar silhouette is varied in the latest designs. Instead of the fitted line coming directly in front and the bouffant skirt being dropped low at the back, her dresses made for the South have an uneven line at the bottom, made usually with points or scallops, and some of her charming dance frocks are flounced from belt to hem.

The bodice of the new Lanvin models is also different, being higher in the neck, and in several of the evening gowns introducing at least a suggestion of sleeve. One characteristic of the Lanvin robe de style is its conservative décolletage, and its popularity has resulted in innumerable reproductions, since even an amateur dressmaker is able to copy the model with success.

Shoes are prettier and less showy than the footwear of last season. The reptile skins of finer grain are used, with narrow band trimming of plain kid, and some charming styles are shown in plain colors, such as beige, tan or castor. Most of the new models have a binding or other trimming of leather of another shade.

Stockings are plain or have clocks or drop stitch ribs in the same color as the shoes for ordinary wear and are shown in a number of new modernistic patterns for sports wear.

STRIVING TO TEACH TOO MANY THINGS SAYS LOWELL.

Boston, Feb. 27 (AP).—President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, addressing the opening meeting of the annual session of the department of superintendence of the National Education Association today, suggested that the schools were "striving to teach too many things."

"One of the defects we observe in not a few candidates for admission to college," he said, "is distribution of high school studies over many fields, no one of which has been pursued long enough to give a thorough grasp on the subject. Education consists less in the number of things a boy has glanced at than in the way he has learned to regard them. What we need is a good mental training, an accurate and thorough habit of mind."

KINGSTON, N. Y. FEB. 27, 1934

There are those who profess to be shocked by the report that Trotsky, the exiled Bolshevik leader, arrived in his destination with 70 trunks. "The bright lexicon of Communism," says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, "there are no such impediments as 70 trunks." No American millionaire or movie star ever traveled with that many. Let us be plain. Those trunks could not have been filled with clothes and personal goods. Probably 60 of them contained copies of Trotsky's speeches.

Milwaukee has passed from one kind of fame to another which is so appropriate that it deserves chronicling. The beer that made that brew- ing capital famous is gone, and the Hubst Brewery has been turned into a padlock factory, making the locks that are used to close places break- ing the liquor laws in other cities. Many of those padlocks are being used now in Chicago, and a cargo of 147,000 has just been sent to New York city—an appropriate place for them. Maybe some will come to Kingston now that the city has become a center for law enforcement.

"FOLLIES" AND DRAMA.

Florenz Ziegfeld spreads gloom among theatre goers by saying he doesn't think there will ever be any more "Follies." He may feel differently about it later on; managers are almost as temperamental as actors. But it would be no great loss to the world if he carried out his threat. His various "Follies" have been great shows of their kind. They have entertained and rested the tired business man. They have made many stage reputations and been a boon to the divorce courts. They have added brightness, life and gaiety to a dull world. But they have had their limitations.

The display of feminine beauty, which has been their dominant note, is not necessarily the highest form of dramatic art. There may be greater and more permanently satisfying art which includes this factor without over-emphasizing it.

CAT AS A COMPASS.

Prof. Francis H. Herrick, a leading American biologist, tells a scientific story of taking a cat for a twilight boat ride. The cat was wrapped in an overcoat so that it could see nothing. "As the craft pulled from shore, the cat mewed over the gunwale toward dry land. As the boat swung about, the cat turned to the other rail. The boat cut figure eights and circles, and the cat unfailingly kept its head pointed toward the dock."

Darkness closed down, and the men in the boat followed a tortuous course and deliberately lost themselves some distance out. Then released the cat from the overcoat and steered in the direction of her gaze. They came straight in to the dock again.

How the cat did that the professor says he hasn't any idea. Cats, like some other animals, and most birds, seem to have an unfailing instinct for direction. Apparently a cat is as good as a compass for any boatman who wants to be sure of getting back home. Prof. Herrick says he would like to test this homing instinct in human beings. For the experiment he would like "a secluded area of perfectly flat ground and two years of observation."

All human beings probably had the instinct strongly at one time, and retain vestiges of it. Mostly it serves us no longer because we have substituted reason for it—though we often make little enough of that higher faculty when we find ourselves lost.

THE NEW DIRIGIBLES.

Dirigible construction has changed and improved, too, while popular attention has been focussed chiefly on heavier-than-air craft. Here are a few of the facts concerning airships of the near future given in a public address by Dr. Karl Arstein, famous German designer of airships, now working in this country with the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation.

The new ships will be larger and faster than any previously seen in this country. Their average cruising speed will be 75 miles an hour, which is five miles faster than the Los Angeles of the wrecked Shasta. Each ship will have 6,500-6,600 cubic feet capacity for helium gas. Three adjustable propellers will enable a ship to rise or descend in small space. Hitherto in American-built airships, altitude has been gained or lost through manipulation of the gas.

Of further importance in traveling for the water of course will be the fact that these ships will be regarded as to permit transportation of 400 passengers during flight. The metal framework is designed to render landing harmless. The cloth parts will be replaced.

There are to be dining rooms, staterooms and other equipment for luxury and comfort.

Dr. Arstein maintains that the airship is "more comfortable, spacious, easy riding and safe than the plane," although it calls for considerably more capital to start with.

There is undoubtedly certain to be rendered both by dirigibles and planes, but so far the public has received more inspiration and satisfaction from the latter than from the former.

 DOLLARS, SENSE, AND THE HEART.

When an infection of some kind has damaged the heart, and the patient, because the acute condition is past, quite naturally wants to go about his regular employment again, it is often just a hard question for the physician as to the wisest course to pursue.

Someone has said that the outcome of any heart condition is a matter of dollars and sense. Dollars because the treatment that the doctor would like to give would be a period of complete rest, then a period of partial rest, and finally to outline just how much daily work the patient should do when the heart has reached what he considers its best possible condition for the years to come.

This then takes a lot of sense on the part of the doctor as he tries to meet the patient's needs, physically and financially.

Thus Dr. De F. Weeks tells us that the outcome depends upon the intelligence of the physician and of the patient.

You see there is one important point that physicians cannot accurately measure after an illness, and that is how much of its reserve power the heart has lost, and how long it will take to renew this power.

If not renewed completely, to what extent has it regained its former reserve power?

The unfortunate thing is that the patient begins to feel pretty well, is anxious to get back to his work, and as his work is not of a severe or strenuous nature, he appears to be in good condition again. Yet as a matter of fact he has started back a little too soon, and has not given his heart sufficient time to regain its reserve power. He apparently gets along all right, but the next time he has an illness, the heart is a little slower getting back to what appears to be a normal condition.

What is my point?

That in all illnesses the heart is called on for extra work. Sometimes the heart itself, the heart muscle, is damaged by the illness. The only way it can get back its reserve power is not to ask it to work much; to rest it in fact. While it is resting, and although it is working always, it is really resting when you lie down, because the demands on it are slight.

I have no desire to make invalids out of folks, in fact I'm a great believer in exercise, but if your doctor advises an extra few days or a week resting at home after an illness, it may be a good investment in dollars and sense.

HISTORY OF THE PASSION PLAY SHOWN IN PICTURES.

Creating through the medium of motion pictures an authentic record of the world's oldest Passion Play constitutes a most important step in entertainment annals. For centuries pilgrims have made their painful way to the distant Alpine foothills to absorb inspiration from the sacred drama presented at Freiburg and Oberammergau. In recent years both have attracted multitudes of tourists from America.

Now through the instrumentality of this great picture, the world's oldest Passion Play, reaching through the misty ages to the year 1264, is brought to one's very door by its presentation at the Auditorium Theatre for three days, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, March 1, 2 and 3. Panoramic scenes of Freiburg and Oberammergau are shown. This motion picture in many respects imparts a more satisfactory view than is to be obtained through actual visits to the performance, possible at Freiburg only at intervals of five years and at Oberammergau only once a decade. The settings for the various scenes are scattered along one side of the enclosure like a great street, facing the seats. There are some 3,000 of these spreading over a wide area. Thus many scenes are viewed to advantage from a certain seat, while others presented from a different angle, are difficult or impossible to follow. The photographer has moved his camera to squarely face each scene, bringing the connected narrative directly before your eyes.

MAY CONVERT JAIL INTO O. HENRY MEMORIAL.

Fort Worth, Texas, Feb. 27.—The proposal to convert the Travis County Jail at Austin, Texas, into a memorial for William Sidney Porter, known throughout the world as O. Henry, short-story writer, the most famous prisoner ever confined within its walls, is seriously made by Bunker's Monthly, the Texas magazine published at Fort Worth, in its March issue, which is just from the press.

The last roof that sheltered O. Henry within the orders of Texas was the Travis County Jail, it declares in its leading editorial, "and it ought to be converted into an O. Henry Memorial Library."

In February and March, 1898, just thirty years ago, Will Porter, who had been a citizen of Texas for fifteen years, occupied a cell in that jail as a Federal prisoner, charged with embezzling a few hundred dollars of the funds of a National Bank. And it was in that jail that he wrote: "Right here I want to state solemnly that in spite of the jury's verdict I am absolutely innocent of any wrong doing in that bank matter, except so far as foolishly keeping a position that I could not successfully fill."

Porter served three years and three months in the Federal penitentiary at Columbus, Ohio, to which prison he was sent from Travis County Jail, and it was there he began to write under the non de plume of "O. Henry." He was released on July 24, 1901, and went to New York in the Spring of 1902. Eight years later, on June 5, 1910, he died in a New York hospital, but in that short period he had made himself the most widely known and best-loved story-teller in the world.

The Travis County Jail stands opposite the grounds of the State Capitol, and the land it occupies is the property of the State of Texas. Bunker's Monthly proposes that the county shall find another site for a new jail and dedicate the present building to the memory of the most famous prisoner ever confined within its walls.

It would be decidedly the kind of a memorial that O. Henry would appreciate," it declares. "The poetic justice of it would appeal to him strongly, and one can imagine him chuckling over it, out there across Correspondence Schools.

The beginning of correspondence education can be traced back to the beginning of university extension by James Stewart, fellow of Trinity college, Oxford, in 1867. The real development, however, came later, in the United States when in 1878 an organization called the "Society to Encourage Studies at Home" was formed.

The Great Divide in whatever Celestial Bagdad he may now reign as Caliph. It would be a real O. Henry "unexpected ending" to the story of Will Porter's trial and conviction, when he was absolutely innocent of wrong doing. His humanity was his distinguishing characteristic. And what a human thing to do to take this building, the erection of which was made necessary by human frailty and human passion—a jail—and convert it into the memorial of a man who possessed, as few others, an understanding of human weakness and a tolerant charity towards human shortcomings, a man who saw beneath the foibles of all sorts and conditions of men a common humanity. What a human memorial it would be.

Bunker's Monthly makes the proposal in formal fashion, inaugurating a movement to accomplish it, and pledging the support of the publication in putting it over. It leaves the question of particulars for future consideration, to be settled equitably to every interest concerned.

COSTLIEST

Allen Pringle

Hollywood, Cal.—Allen Pringle, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star, who owns the costliest negligee in Hollywood, made of real lace from a shawl once owned by an Empress of Russia, gives her recipe for cleaning it.

"I always personally supervise the washing of it to make certain it is done in Lux soap," Allen said.

And over at Paramount, Travis Banton, costume director for all productions, reveals that in caring for the thousands of beautiful costumes and the vast stock of fabrics in the Paramount wardrobe and sets, Lux is used . . . because it saves money by keeping all kinds of fabrics new-looking twice as long.

"We now use Lux for every bit of laundry in our vast wardrobe department. We no longer discard costumes which have lost their new look. We 'Lux' them. Lux doubles the life of sturdy fabrics as well as sheer materials," he said.

Millions of women also use Lux because its pure soap cleans safely, keep fabrics new twice as long.

FALSE SECURITY NIPS SMUGGLERS

Officials Ignore Border and Center Efforts on Inland Trails.

Austin, Texas.—No effort is made on the part of United States immigration and customs authorities to guard the crossing points of the Rio Grande as a means of preventing, or at least lessening, the carrying on of a nefarious trade between the two countries. In fact, aliens and smugglers are permitted to cross at will. The effort to apprehend them is made, and usually successfully accomplished, after they are well on this side of the river and headed, perhaps, toward some interior city. It is declared by government officials on the border that thousands of men would be required to enforce an effective patrol of the American bank of the Rio Grande. It is pointed out that at one time just prior to the World war there were 50,000 United States soldiers forming a cordon from the mouth of the river to El Paso and that despite the vigilance of these troops unlawful crossing of the international boundary stream was freely done.

It is in the territory back from the river a few miles that the mounted immigration inspectors, in co-operation with state rangers and local peace officers, operate so successfully that it is estimated that less than 5 per cent of the aliens who smuggle across the river get outside of the deadline and on their way to freedom. In the lower Rio Grande border district, which extends from the mouth of the river to Rio Grande City, 125 miles, the border patrol consists of only twenty-five men. Although these men are scattered over a territory larger in area than the average state, they can be assembled at any point in the district within a few hours.

Roads Well Guarded.
When a party of illegal aliens, liquor runners or other kinds of smugglers land on the Texas bank of the Rio Grande they may feel, and probably are temporarily secure from molestation by officers so long as they do not attempt to go into the interior.
The roads and trails leading back from the river are constantly guarded by officers who shift around from place to place. The uncertainty of where one or more of these officers may be on any day or even a particular hour of the day adds to the hazards of the smuggler who may be seeking to get through the danger line. Not long ago word came to the immigration chief in charge of the district that forty aliens had been seen in the chaparral back from the river near Rio Grande city. In two hours a force of twelve mounted inspectors was assembled and on the trail of the fugitives. They were rounded up and later deported.

Smuggling liquor from Mexico into Texas has become such a hazardous vocation that it is believed that comparatively little of the wet goods get beyond the border towns. Constant watch is kept by prohibition enforcement officers and rangers on the roads leading north from the border. It is almost a daily experience for an automobile traveler to come upon a painted canvas sign stretched across the road reading: "Stop! U. S. officers." These signs are usually placed just beyond a sharp curve, and there is no escape from search.

One of the most difficult forms of smuggling to be contended with is that of narcotics. There are no means of knowing how much contraband opium and other injurious drugs are brought into this country by unlawful means. It is the theory of border customs authorities that a far reaching organization has long existed which is devoted to the smuggling not only of narcotics but of Chinese and other banned aliens into the United States. The ramifications of this organization are believed to extend into China and possibly other Oriental countries, as well as into those of Europe where the quota system applies. It is well known that aliens who are seeking unlawful entry to this country are taken in charge by members of this far-reaching organization when they land at a Mexican port, whether it be Mazatlan, Manzanillo, Vera Cruz or Tampico. For a stipulated price the alien is assured of being landed on the U. S. side of the border.
He may or may not reach his goal.
Many instances have been brought to light, and many others which probably were forever hidden have occurred, in which trustful aliens were murdered and robbed of what little money they possessed ere they reached the northern bank of the Rio Grande.

Chinese Hardest to Deal With.
Of the various nationalities of aliens who flock to the border in a continuous and apparently never ending stream the Chinese are the most difficult to deal with, according to immigration authorities. They possess a cunning and intelligence much above the average of other aliens. They have more patience and are willing to abide their time in order to make sure of success in crossing the border. It is difficult to identify a smuggled Chinese once he gets among his countrymen anywhere in the United States. No better evidence of the magnitude of the unlawful Chinese immigration through Mexico is needed than the fact that in practically all the border towns in Mexico the Chinese population is so large as to be out of all proportion to the business in which they purport to be engaged. This is particularly true of Mexican, where there are said to be approximately 4,000 Chinese out of a total population of about 7,000. In Nuevo Laredo, Piedras Negras, Juarez,

Villa Ahumada, Piedras Negras, Nuevo
Laredo, Tijuana and Matamoros the Chinese colonies are far larger than those of any other towns of corresponding size in Mexico. By means of false certificates and with a knowledge of English which they acquire before attempting to cross into the United States these Orientals are provided with safeguards against possible detection to a far better extent than aliens of other nationalities.
United States immigration authorities do not attempt to estimate the number of Chinese who elude their vigilance and set up a residence in this country in the course of a year.

In the matter of smuggling of merchandise and articles upon which there is a high duty, it is believed by commercial interests in border towns that not as much of this is done as was the case in former times.
Smuggling in the earlier days was regarded as more or less legitimate.
Some of the large fortunes of families that now are held in high respect both in Texas and Mexico had their origin in smuggling operations. In those days the nefarious trade consisted largely in smuggling silks, diamonds and other gems and a variety of articles and goods upon which the United States imposed high import duties. Cattle smuggling was also a profitable business.

Oil Royalties Wane

for Osage Indians
Pawhuska, Okla.—Comparative poverty has come to the Osage Indians.
For the last quarterly distribution of oil royalties gave each member of the tribe only $1,400.

The oil wealth of the tribe is beginning to wane and the federal government, guardian of the Osages, is taking steps to adjust their standards of living to their reduced incomes, which exceeded $15,000 annually for individual tribesmen during the last seven years.

The first step of the government in this direction was to limit to $2,000
the factory list price of the new automobiles which the Indians may purchase. Thus "poverty" affects a proud race which traveled from coast to coast in the most expensive limousines.

Almost $240,000,000 in oil and gas leases and royalties was paid to the Osages in the last seven years. Statisticians figured that their payments, if converted into $19 bills and placed end to end, would circle the earth one and one-fourth times at the equator, and that in $1 bills the paper would decompose both sides of a 290-foot wall describing the Osage domain.

The trouble with the fellow who is going to the devil is that he wants to take the whole country with him.

Stores Up Memories for Sightless Years

Paris.—Assured by leading specialists in America and Europe that she will be totally blind within a year, Miss Carol Hovius, twenty-year-old coed from the University of Wiscon-son, arrived in town with the avowed determination of seeing enough this year to last her the rest of her blind life.

"I'm going to store up memories, heap my mind full of visions. Then next year when I lose my sight—and my doctors tell me I haven't a chance to escape—I'm going to start and arrange them in order," she announced light heartedly as she studied catalog of the Louvre and of scores of other museums which help make Paris the artistic culture of the world.

The youthful college girl plans to study carefully the great masterpieces of painting and sculpture in all of the old world's galleries. In France she will visit picturesque countryside, Brittany fishing ports, Basque mountain retreats. She will see the splendors of the Alps and the homely beauties of rural England, returning, of course, to America for a last glance around.

Find Untailored Pelts

Are Hardest to Steal

New York.—Fur thieves run less risk of detection when they steal dressed furs and coats prepared for sale to the retailer than they do when they steal raw furs.

"Of course we keep these furs well guarded," remarked a fur expert as he showed a visitor around a warehouse filled with valuable pelts. "Quite a number of the men around here have guns in their pockets. But there really isn't nearly so much chance of getting away with these raw furs as with dressed furs."

"It might seem that it would be hard to find or identify ordinary raw-fur pelts, but as a matter of fact there is a limited number of places where these can be sold. Any unusual offerings of raw furs can be quickly detected."

"On the other hand, there is an almost unlimited market for furs that are ready for retail sale."

New Discovery Is Made in Tomb of King Tut

Luxor, Egypt.—Howard Carter noted Egyptologist, who recently resumed exploration of Tut-Ankh-Amen's tomb, has unearthed a Canopic jar in a wonderful state of preservation, said to contain the viscera of the ancient king.

The jar is of beautifully carved alabaster. It was discovered in an antechamber of the tomb with a number of other vessels containing various objects.
The tomb will soon be reopened to visitors.

First Appearance Under New Leader, Prof. Tidmarsh of Albany—Guest Artist Will be Mae Goetz of Schenectady, Soprano—Annual Supper-Dance Follows Concert.

The Mendelssohn Club will give its concert of the season in the Kingston High School auditorium on Friday evening at 8:15 o'clock. This will be the first appearance of the club under the baton of its new conductor, Prof. Elmer A. Tidmarsh of Albany.

Mae Goetz, soprano, of Schenectady will be the guest artist, and will be accompanied by Robert S. Miller, well-known pianist, of Poughkeepsie.

Immediately following the concert, the active and associate members of the Mendelssohn Club, and their families and friends, will gather at the Governor Clinton Hotel, where the annual supper-dance of the club will be held. Some of the favorites will be sung, and following supper dancing will be enjoyed to the strains of a local orchestra.

Last year's Mendelssohn supper-dance was attended by over 200 members and their friends. This year's attendance is expected to be even larger. The club members have been requested to make reservations not later than next Thursday morning to Lester C. Elmendorf, chairman of the entertainment committee, at the Kingston Coal Company's office, 11 Thomas street.

LIVES FIVE YEARS WITH LONE WOLF

Indian Youth Found Existing in Primitive State.

Wichita Falls, Texas.—A Tarzan of real life is adjusting himself to civilization after living for five years in the mountains with only a wolf for a companion. He is Sin Roba, a nineteen-year-old Indian.

The youth lived on an Apache reservation in New Mexico until he was fourteen years old, when his father was banished from the tribe because of smallpox. The son elected to go with his father, as did an old squaw. They went to the mountains, which extend from New Mexico to southwestern Texas. The father, very ill, soon died, and the Indian woman died soon afterward. The boy buried them and faced primitive life alone.

He obtained food by picking wild berries, and by killing fish and animals with a spear made by fastening a sharp flint rock on a long pole. The boy caught a wolf cub, tamed it, and taught it to help him hunt.

Recently, after wandering to the Rio Grande, the young man was taken from his primitive world by officers who found him sitting naked on the river bank. He was brought to Wichita Falls, but he refused to eat cooked food or to sleep on a bed. He rebelled against clothing, but finally accepted it.

Sin Roba had learned Spanish while on the Apache reservation in New Mexico, and it was in this language that he revived his power of speech to tell the strange story of his experiences. He was then taken to a state hospital, where physicians pronounced him "an unusually bright fellow."

The youth is now trying to learn the ways of white men. He has refused to return to the Indians who drove out his father.

Youth Garbed in Undies

Kisses Baxom Policeman

New York.—When Francis Flynn was arraigned before Magistrate Smith in West Side court, the charge entered against him was disorderly conduct but it was really for larceny that he spent three days in jail, being unable to pay an alternative $10 fine.

He had stolen a kiss and the story of the theft was told rather vehemently by the kisser and complainant, Patrolman William Kearney of the West Sixty-eighth Street station. As he told it he glared at Flynn, who appeared in court wearing a policeman's uniform coat, a pair of ill-fitting blue trousers and a pair of shoes much too large for him.

"I was standing on the corner," said Patrolman Kearney, "when this—this—defendant dashed up to me, wearing only lightweight underwear, and hugged and kissed me."

"Kissed you?" asked the court.

"Yes, your honor," replied the blushing Kearney. "He actually kissed me."

"What do you mean by going around kissing policemen?" asked the court, turning to Flynn.

"All I remember," said Flynn, "is that I went to a party in that neighborhood last night and possibly I left my clothes there."

"I didn't mean to offend the officer," he explained.

"I'd rather you had taken a pass at me, or even kicked me," said Mr. Kearney. "No one—no man, I mean—drunk or sober, is going to kiss me on the public street and get away with it."

Hurt Lip Forbids Kiss; Court Gives Damages

Paris.—Lost kisses were appraised at 40,000 francs recently by French courts. Such damages were awarded Madame Marie Laparcerie, a writer of note, upon a showing that she was unable for months to kiss her children because her lip, injured in an automobile accident, pained her too much when she tried to bestow the maternal kiss.

Madame Laparcerie lost her suit in the lower courts when her claim was based on a scar on her breast that she felt would prevent her from wearing low-cut evening gowns. The "kiss" plea, on her appeal, moved the court and she won her case.

Boulder Crashes Through Home, Children Sleep On

Pontardawe, Wales.—Three school sleepers live in this little Glamorgan-shire village. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jenkins.

When a 10-ton boulder, speeding down a 150-foot hill, crashed into their home and bounded through bathroom and kitchen, the three children continued to dream.

They did not awake until their parents rushed in, expecting to find them dead. No one was hurt.

Added Large Territory

The treaty for the Gadsden Purchase was signed December 30, 1853. It negotiated the purchase by the United States from Mexico of a strip of land 500 miles long and 120 miles wide, now forming part of Arizona and New Mexico.

Pacific Exports to South America Show Big Gain

Washington.—Exports from Pacific coast states to the west coast republics of South America increased 236 per cent between 1913 and 1926, the Department of Commerce has revealed. The total value of exports grew from less than $5,000,000 in 1913 to more than $15,000,000 in 1926.

Trade with Ecuador, Bolivia, Peru and Chile has expanded strikingly since the war, the department said, 36 per cent of the combined export trade of the four countries, valued at $262,500,000 in 1926, representing products of the United States.

The department pointed to an evident demand for foodstuffs in the republics and said the Pacific coast states are in a favorable position to export needed wheat, hard, soft and fruit. Lumber is wanted in Peru, Bolivia and Ecuador in large quantities. Chile has more need for petroleum.

Peru is regarded as the most favorable market, although lack of regular transportation facilities has retarded development of trade. Increase in the size of return cargoes, it is believed, would warrant expansion of the service.

New Barrier for Auto Bandits in England

London.—The police authorities have adopted a new type of barrier calculated to deal effectively with motor bandits.

The old type of wooden barrier across the road did not always work. Thieves have driven their cars straight at them, knocking them aside and doing little damage to the car.

The scheme that has been adopted out of the many submitted consists of two three-quarter barriers placed from either side of the road a short distance apart, forming an artificial "S" bend.

To pass these barriers cars will be forced to slow down. An attempt by a bandit to crash through them may be disastrous, for they are fitted with sharp instruments calculated to rip the tires of any car coming into collision with them.

Prodigies Sacrifice Childhood, Says One

New York.—A belated childhood is the fate of all musical prodigies, believes Jascha Heifetz, only a few years out of the prodigy class himself.

"The parents of little Yenuki Menuhin, the boy violinist who so startled New York this season, are very wise in retiring the youngster for the rest of the season," Heifetz said. "A very few appearances a year serve to give the child poise and an incentive to work, but too many may spoil him."

Talent in childhood, said Heifetz, precludes the possibility of a natural childhood.

SENATORS VISIT COAL STRIKE AREA

Here they are shown questioning the wife of a strike-breaker. Left to right are seen Senators Wagner, Gooding, Wheeler and Pine.

Above is a "still" from the motion picture "Dawn," depicting the death of Edith Cavell, British nurse executed by the Germans in Belgium during the World War. German protests against the showing of the picture on the ground that it would only promote ill-feeling between the once enemy nations, have been effective and the English Board of Censors has decided against permitting "Dawn" to be exhibited. The "still" that particularly aroused objections shows an officer ready to shoot Nurse Cavell after she had fainted in front of the firing squad.

Underneath the City Hall Dome

The Tale of the Enterprising Young Lawyer and the Method He Took to Adjourn a Jury Trial in Which He Was Interested—The "Camel" Chair.

The casual visitor dropped in at police headquarters the other day to see how the police were fixed since the city hall was damaged by fire and found that they were very comfortable. Locked on the second floor of the Municipal Building.

While there he drifted into a conversation with some of the men at headquarters and was told the tale of the enterprising young lawyer and his rather unusual method of adjourning a jury trial in which he was interested.

It seems that the trial was set for evening and a jury had been drawn. Before the night of the trial, however, the young lawyer, probably having to attend another meeting, decided to adjourn the case again.

His method was unique. Using the telephone he called up the jurors called in the case and told them that they were excused from duty the night of the trial as the case had been adjourned. He was able to phone all of the jurors except one, who had no telephone.

The enterprising young lawyer then called up the judge and informed him of the status of the case and asked him if he would have the police notify the juror he had been unable to locate.

As the police had subpoenaed some fifteen or twenty witnesses in the case they had a busy session the next day locating them and informing them that the case had been adjourned.

The name of the enterprising young attorney was not made public. His exploit, probably unique in the annals of the bar, leads one to believe that he will rise fast in his chosen profession.

Then to polish off the afternoon's story telling the tale of the "camel" chair was related. It appears that the board of public works has several carpenters at work on the same floor of the building and they are under the administration of Albert J. Bowen, somewhat familiarly known around the building as "Eck."

This force of men have been busy lately in repairing the chairs used in the various departments and the other day wheeled into police headquarters a swivel chair. It looked like an ordinary chair until one sat down in it. The one who sat down would promptly arise. In the center of the seat was a huge bump. The chair was promptly labeled the "camel" chair as it had a bump in the center. There is a certain brand of cigarettes that advertise that the smoker would "walk a mile for one."

The same may be said of the swivel chair with this change: The latter would walk a mile to use another chair.

The "camel" chair was promptly returned from whence it came for further overhauling and an operation on the "bump."

Two-Piece Suit Is Developed Here in Pastel-Striped Crepe Mohair. It is belted in Green Suede and Accompanied by a Matching Coat.

There are always, at this season, attempts to revive old favorites, so among the revivals of importance may be mentioned Shantung, that informal type of silk associated with

Paris. Unless a woman has not only an unlimited income, but unlimited opportunities to wear clothes as well, it is best for her not to overstock her wardrobe. We are a little lot at best, so our fondness for our clothes is worn out long before the clothes themselves. Besides, unless one is marooned in out-of-the-way places, there are endless opportunities for buying what one needs from time to time, which, is, after all, much more fun from wrestling with the problem of a completed wardrobe; that is, if such a thing were ever possible.

There is not such a tremendous change in the spring clothes that have been shown in Paris. In detail there is change, to be sure, and, of course, there are new things, too; but spring clothes do not make those of late winter look passe, which is fortunate.

ELEANOR GUNN On Fashions

The Importance of Sports Clothes Is the First Impression of the Earlier Paris Openings—The Revivals of Pique, Shantung, and Etamine Are Among the Interests

Paris. With Paris thronged with buyers, buyers from South as well as North America, Italy, Spain, England and Germany, there is the usual excitement over new clothes.

As was to be expected, sports clothes are given the first position. They are designed in one, two, three and four pieces, and are in some instances simple and in others elaborate by embroidery and by many intricate details. For one thing, the uneven hemline, usual enough for afternoon and evening, has appeared for the separate skirt, which is so often topped by a contrasting jumper.

It hardly seems an appropriate measure, but it is one that several houses have felt inclined to make.

Fullness in Skirts.
The unevenness is not always the result of scallops, for skirts are full either at front or side and at either point are inclined to be longer. Fullness results from either a central inverted pleat or a wide box pleat, from small pleats or from the use of a circular front. At the side, it usually results from pleating.

In one of the sports wear houses, the skirt edge was fringed to a depth of about two inches, this being especially attractive on a white satin, topped, by the way, with a brown georgette jumper embroidered with white angora. The combination of white and brown is rather an extraordinary one, and one that is being attempted with some success as a departure from both gray and beige.

Straw Hats Appear.
It is not often that French women appear in January wearing straw hats with their fur coats; in fact, not often of late that they have worn straw even in the middle of summer, but recently a few smart straw hats have made their entry, and have been admired. The straws so far seen have been coarse, but exceedingly shiny. In fact, there seems to be a partiality for highly-glossed things, such as crepe lace, and ribbon, satins, cellophanes, and several other so-called polished surfaces, not, however, to the exclusion of dull surfaces.

Among the dull fabrics revived, and still in use, may be mentioned Shantung, and moire; taffeta, too, is not highly lustrous in some of its weaves. Wool and silk etamine are both in evidence. They made their first appearance at the October openings, and apparently they are to be offered again.

Novelty Belts and Buckles.
This effort on the part of the haute couture to provide novelty in material, as well as in color, silhouette, and detail is a worthy one. Naturally, during the openings many things are offered that are ultimately rejected, but it is only with the passing of time that the process of elimination becomes effective and that we can actually tell which are the "fittest" that have survived.

The continued use of novelty, and usually narrow belts, the interest manifested in novelty buckles, and the intense interest in clothes of the sports genre were all indicated early in the opening season.

Character in Prints.
The printed frock also has lived up to expectations and is being offered with a matching printed coat. Prints, as we foretold, are small or medium size, and have character rather than mere prettiness to commend them. A conventionalized white rose on a black ground, pansies on a black ground, and small, geometrical designs are some of the outstanding motifs.

Black seems to be the most approved background, but then it must be borne in mind that black is exceedingly smart in Paris at the moment. In fact, it has come to pass that in one of the musical comedy successes of the winter the chorus and three principals in one scene are gowned in black; the chorus in ruffled net robes de style and the principals in versions of the same theme worked out in lace, chiffon, and taffeta. Many of the smartest spring coats, by the way, are black and are trimmed with flat furs instead of the omnipresent lynx.

travel and the tropics. There is no reason why its revival should not be acclaimed, for if ever a silk was appropriate for sports wear, it is Shantung; also pongee, and other members of that particular family.

Goupy, who is rather more happy in a sportive mood than any other couturier, makes excellent use of Shantung for sports skirts, but in her more recent collection she has, for some reason, refrained from making use of it for either jumpers or coats, for which purpose it is, of course, in excellent taste. Both in natural tones and in color, this silk lends itself nicely to the new full-in-the-front type of sports skirt.

(Copyright, 1928, by Metropolitan Newspaper Service, New York.)

Eleanor Gunn Says
Paris—White pique, well tailored, has appeared for sports jumpers and was introduced at the Paris openings by Goupy.

Brown with white was also a color combination of this house, clear light green with black being another favorite scheme.

Moire for sports clothes and afternoon and evening wear was another Goupy idea.

Printed crepe coats to match the print of the dress and lined with the ground color of the print are new and smart.

Pony and flat furs are used for the narrow collars and edgings of spring coats.

Novel kid gauntlets have been noted, made of a lighter shade of gray or beige for the upper part, with the under part of the glove of a darker color.

Narrow novelty belts and art nouveau buckles appear again in the spring collections.

Cellophane and glossy straws make their appearance.

Small fruits for the buttonhole, for girdles, and for hats are a spring suggestion.

Secrets about body odor everyone should know

THE secret behind many a failure is . . . body odor.

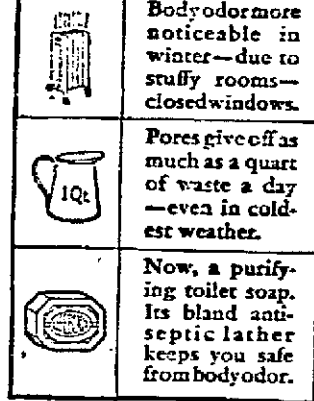

People who offend are not wanted—either as employees or friends. You can readily appreciate why.

Yet, much as we abhor body odor, not one of us is safe from it. We have to perspire—or we'd die. And in winter, with activities indoors and warmer, stuffier rooms, body odor is more noticeable than ever.

Others detect body odor—the offender doesn't

Even on coldest days, our millions of pores give off invisible perspiration—often as much as a quart of waste every 24 hours.

Whether we can see this body moisture or not, it is always odoriferous. And it shows no partiality. Without taking precautions, anyone—from day laborer to society leader—may offend.

Body odor more noticeable in winter—due to stuffy rooms—closed windows.

Pores give off as much as a quart of waste a day—even in coldest weather.

HIGHER COMPENSATION FOR SLAIN DISEASED CATTLE

Itasca, Feb. 27.—Under the new law which goes into effect immediately, owners of tubercular cattle slaughtered in accordance with the State T. B. Cattle Act will receive approximately 25 per cent higher indemnities than previously allowed.

This bill was initiated by the State Farm Bureau Federation at its annual meeting held last November when delegates passed a resolution requesting the Federation to seek an upward revision of the scale of indemnities paid by the state in order to bring the brackets into line with present cattle prices which have risen considerably during the last two years.

The new law also reduces from six to three months the time that a bovine must be in the state for the owner to receive indemnity. Moreover, it extends the territory affected to include the province of Ontario, since a good share of New York State cattle comes from that section.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Uncommon Sense

By John Blake

TAKING IT EASY

FOR the last three weeks I have been stopping at a large hotel in a semitropical country.

All sorts of people, chiefly elderly people, are gathered here. Their idea in coming to this climate is to lengthen their lives—and some of them do it.

But a more bored, fretful, impatient collection of people I have never seen.

They come here year after year, arriving about the time that it gets cold in the regions where they live in summer, and departing as soon as the frosts have gone away at home.

There are remarkable islands, piled up by the sea, just off the shore, and made almost wholly of coral sand, or sand composed of disintegrated shells.

There are palm trees of many varieties, and inland are clear rivers, rising from springs which come from no one knows where. In these rivers are many varieties of fish and shell fish, and on their banks are turtles and alligators.

But the people at this hotel know nothing and care nothing about coral formations, or palm growths, or the action of the sea.

They are for the most part people of little reading and little thought, and unless there is something arranged for their entertainment all the time they are miserable.

When cheap picture shows, such as they would never go to see at home come to the nearby village, they throng to see them.

A man with a road machine at work on a highway nearby attracted thirty or forty of them and kept them interested a whole morning.

Those who can play golf, do play much more than they need for exercise, and more than is really good for them.

They are really people to be pitied. They have abundant wealth in money, but not enough intellectual wealth to enable them really to enjoy taking it easy.

They have labored long—some of them—to gain fortunes, and now that the fortunes are in hand, they can buy nothing with them which they really want.

Here at the hotel also is a college professor, whose health is broken, and who has enough means to stay here for a couple of months.

Out of the country round he gets a world of information and entertainment.

He is out all day looking at wonders of nature not to be found in his own locality, and soaking in health with the sunshine.

He would be happy anywhere, for he has learned how to take it easy—he has that kind of a mind.

No man who does not how to take it easy and get recreation out of it, ever ought to retire from the business he knows and understands and enjoys.

Results of Industrial Games

The Red Shields defeated the Wappingers 47-23, in the first half of the basketball game, played at the Wappingers court Sunday night. The game was a close contest.

In the second half, the Red Shields were unable to make the trip with the team. Dan Joyce came through with 15 points for the Kingston team. Each team has been successful in two games played and a number will probably be started. It is likely that the deciding tilt will be played on a neutral court such as Peekskill or Newburgh.

The Red Shields, D. Quinlan, proved their superiority over the Wappingers in the first half of their game, which was played in favor of the former. Joe Quinn of the Wappingers and Dan Joyce of the Red Shields were the scorers with 15 markers each.

HIGHLAND QUINET DEFEATED WAPPINGERS FALLS

The Highland quintet of basketball players defeated the Wappingers Falls team in the deciding tilt of a three-game series, 45-37, at the latter's court Sunday afternoon. The Highlanders stepped to the front after the first half at the end of which they trailed their opponents 23-17. Pete Bruck played with the winners in place of Maury McDermott, Colonial pitcher, who has signed with the Beckwith team. Bruck, who played with Mickey Husta's team against Rochester of the American League here, will finish out the court season with Highland.

New York, Feb. 27 (AP).—This is the week that the heavyweights come back into the spotlight.

The elimination process will be taken up in two widely separated corners. The outstanding non-union members of the heavyweights class, George Godfrey and Paulino Escobar, meet tomorrow night at Los Angeles. Two days later an official elimination in Madison Square Garden will bring together Tom Heeneey and Jack Delaney.

The non-union bout of the Pacific coast may be the more interesting of the two, but it will have no bearing on the official program, unless Paulino eliminates the "Black Menace". Only a decisive victory for Paulino can upset the prospect that Gene Tunney's June opponent, if any, is to come from a survivor of the Delaney-Heeneey or Sharkey-Risko fights.

Godfrey, however, cannot hope to crowd into the championship picture, no matter what he does to Paulino or any other contender. His manhandling of Tunney and the other organization heavyweights. As a consequence, Godfrey's quest of a title match is likely to be just as fruitless as was that of Harry Wills.

It has been anything but a satisfactory winter for the heavyweights so far. Business has suffered from too much elimination, including the elimination of Jack Dempsey. But if the elimination of the old Manassa Mauler is no more lasting than that of some of the other contenders there is little reason to doubt the possibility of a third Dempsey-Tunney fight.

Most of the Tex Rickard's big shots during the past few years have been with the heavyweights, but a few more fighting terrorists, such as Jimmy McLarnin, may make the promoter forget some of his concentration of the bigger brigade.

The little fellows have been packing 'em in this winter to a greater extent than in years. The Cannonero-Bass tilt for the featherweight crown, the Hudkins-Baker welterweight clash and McLarnin-Terris fray have given the fans more exciting action than a half dozen heavyweight elimination bouts.

McLarnin just now looms as the greatest drawing card any division has had, outside of the heavyweights since the heydays of Benny Leonard, whose two famous fights with Lew Tendler drew an aggregate of more than $500,000 in outdoor arenas.

A McLarnin-Mandell battle at the Yankee Stadium for the lightweight crown might easily be ballyhooed into one of the biggest outdoor attractions of the summer.

There are at least three other "naturals" outside the heavy list—a return match between Cagueroni and Bass, a bout between Ace Hudkins and Joe Dundee for welter title and a return go between Tommy Loughran and Leo Lomski for the lightweight championship.

The early tennis returns from the Pacific coast carry no soothing note to prospective rivals of Helen Wills this season.

The performances of the queen of the courts in holding "Little Bill" Johnston to even terms in a smashing exhibition match at scores of 13-11, 6-8, is astonishing, even to those who watched the remarkable development of strokes power in the California girl's game.

It was, as one observer put it, "one of the most amazing exhibitions of feminine tennis skill ever seen in California," even if Johnston was obviously short of practice.

PAULINO EARNED MUCH MONEY HERE

Basque Woodchopper Picked Up 4,000,000 Francs.

Paulino Escobar has overthrown over Gene Tunney. The man who gave up woodchopping in the Basque for boxing in the land of dollars is a multimillionaire, while the world heavyweight champion is only a reputed multimillionaire. However, the only for Paulino is in France while Gene counts his money in dollars.

Paulino has harvested nearly 4,000,000 francs in eleven months in the United States and still has most of them with him, according to well authenticated reports received by his Parisian advisers.

Paulino is selling down his earnings, buying land near San Sebastian, on the Spanish side of the Basque country. Not long ago he went to a bank in New York with one of his friends, who acts as interpreter, and sent 1,000,000 francs to his agent back home, ordering him to buy more acres.

The former woodchopper is a careful bookkeeper and knows the history, and, to some extent, the future destiny of every penny in his wallet. He always carries a notebook in his pocket and he has recorded his American earnings over the campaign of eleven months in which he has entered the ring nine times.

The total reaches $127,000, divided as follows: Bout with Fierro, $9,000; O'Grady, $3,000; Smith, $5,000; Delaney, $20,000; Hansen, $12,000; Heeneey, $11,000; Heeneey again, $14,000; Wills, $12,000; Risko, $12,000; motion picture revenue, $17,000; miscellaneous, $5,000.

Manager of Braves Sees Danger in Ice Skating

Manager Jack Slattery of the Boston Braves has asked some of his players not to go too sturdily for skating during the winter months. He says that skating develops or tends to develop muscles in the upper legs and in the general locality of the hips in such a way that speed, when the runners are discarded and the athletes hit the turf again, is considerably impaired.

"Look over the good hockey players you know or have seen," said Slattery. "Then make exceptions of men like Hobey Baker of Princeton and George Owen of Harvard and then come to the conclusion that most of the good hockey men are not fast in baseball, football or track."

Oklahoma Cager Almost Reaches Lip of Basket

With Victor Holt, tallest center in the Missouri Valley conference, jumping for the University of Oklahoma, few opposing teams are expected to get the tip-off in the present basketball season.

Holt, who is six feet, six inches tall, possesses extraordinary long arms, and is a bat-in artist par excellence. On his tiptoes, he reaches nearly to the lip of the basket. He weighs 200 pounds, but is fast and graceful on the court.

This is Holt's last year with the Oklahoma cage team. He is also track man, performing in the high jump and the pole vault.

Sullivan was never Champion of World. Again the oft-asked question: "Was John L. Sullivan ever champion of the world?" Sullivan was never recognized as champion of the world. While he claimed the honor his claim was never clearly established, writes H. G. Salinger in the Detroit News.

He never fought Paddy Slavin, English and European champion, and he refused to meet Peter Jackson, the negro champion. Sullivan drew the color line in Jackson's case.

Jackson fought Slavin in London, after Sullivan had refused to fight either, and stopped Slavin in ten rounds, breaking two of his ribs.

That is one reason many still believe that Peter Jackson was the greatest heavyweight of all time.

Facts for the Baseball Fans

Chicago, Feb. 27 (AP).—While the Cubs at Catalina Island, California, were assembled at full strength for intensive training, the Chicago White Sox today were just completing arrangements for the first southward movement of their baseball talent at Shreveport, La.

Sox pitchers, catchers and a few youngsters will entrain tomorrow for the south and will be joined March six by the full strength of the club. There is not a holdout on the roster.

The Cubs' outfielders and infielders reached Catalina Island yesterday. The battersmen have been there nearly a fortnight.

New York, Feb. 27 (AP).—Major league baseball clubs of New York still were troubled by pitcher holdouts today.

Vic Aldridge, traded to the Giants in return for Barleigh Grimes, remains absent from the McGraw training camp at Hot Springs, Ark.

Waite Hoyt was at odds over his salary arrangement with the Yankees. He had not put in appearance at St. Petersburg, Fla.

The Rogers continue to bicker with Dazzy Vance, the strikeout king, who wants a two year contract and $20,000 per annum.

McGraw served notice on Aldridge yesterday that he would do no more coaxing to get him into the field. The Giants' manager said he offered Aldridge $1,000 more than he received from the Pirates.

As to Brooklyn's controversy with Vance, Manager Wilbert Robinson made his last effort to sign Dizzy yesterday. After unsuccessful negotiations, Robinson announced that Dover Hall, Ga., that the dispute would be handled by Frank B. York, acting in behalf of the directors of the Robins.

Philadelphia, Feb. 27 (AP).—Cobb, Speaker and Simmons were envisioned as the Athletics' outfield today when it became known that Manager Mack from his club's training base in Fort Myers, Fla., and Cobb from his home in Augusta, Ga., talked over the telephone for an hour.

Mack's optimism rose another notch on learning that Sammy Hale, holdout third baseman, had surrendered and was on his way from Texas by automobile.

At the Phillies' camp at Winter Haven, Manager Shotton said he would be ready for regular practice games by the end of the week. Most of the infielders and outfielders are due Tuesday and Wednesday, and from that time on the new boss plans plenty of work for both rookies and regulars.

RED SHIELDS LOST TO YONKERS DE MOLAY

After leading at the end of the first half, 17-9, the Red Shields of this city lost to the Yonkers De Molay, 47-23, in the down river city Saturday night. Jimmy Merritt, one of the Salvationists scoring aces, was unable to make the trip with the team. Dan Joyce came through with 15 points for the Kingston team. Each team has been successful in two games played and a number will probably be started. It is likely that the deciding tilt will be played on a neutral court such as Peekskill or Newburgh.

GOVERNOR HAS SIGNED 14 REORGANIZATION BILLS.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 27. (P)—Governor Smith today signed 14 bills, including 14 reorganization measures designed to carry into effect the provisions of the recent state governmental reorganization program. The first of several bills introduced in the Legislature seeking to authorize the establishment of public funds for various communities was among the measures approved by the Governor. Introduced by Senator Brewster, Republican, Warren, it called for the creation of such a fund by the Village of Lake George. The purpose of advertising and promoting summer and winter sports. The Governor also signed the Fernand bill authorizing the appropriation of money by towns to pay for rental and maintenance of rooms occupied by veterans' organizations. The remainder of the bills applied solely to certain communities and were not of statewide importance. With the approval of today's bills, the Governor has signed more than three times as many measures as he did upon the same date last year.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Feb. 27. (P)—The stock market went through a secondary reaction today in which United States Steel common and several popular industrials touched new low levels for the year. Early declines ran from one to six points, with the steel specialties bearing the brunt of the selling pressure. Trading was moderately heavy in volume.

Speculative disappointment over the slow pickup of spring business and continued uneasiness over the brokers' loan and industrial unemployment situations were the chief factors behind the selling movement. Call money opened unchanged at 4 1/2 per cent, but banks called more than $10,000,000 in loans before mid-day, presumably in anticipation of heavy month-end requirements. In view of the heavy government financing and the approach of March 15 income tax payments, Wall Street looks for a disturbed money market during the next fortnight.

United States Steel common dropped to a new low at 13 1/2 after an ineffectual attempt to hold it above the old low of 13 1/2. Montgomery Ward sold off four points to 12 1/2, as against a high of 14 1/2 last month. U. S. Steel Iron Pipe broke six points on selling, presumably inspired by the stiff foreign competition in that industry. Greene Cananea Copper dipped nearly six points but held above the old low of 11 1/2. Air Reduction, Collins and Alkman, Vanadium Steel and Gold Dust all fell four points or more. On the other hand, Adams Express soared ten points and the Kresge Department Store issues moved into new high ground.

Except for two point reactions in Wabash and Canadian Pacific, the rails offered good resistance to selling pressure.

News of the Day In Wall Street

New York, Feb. 27.—Wall Street has about given up hope of any major railroad merger being effected until after November, has passed new enabling legislation, the prospect for which is considered rather remote at this season. Movement of the Interstate Commerce Commission of the original "Great Plan" and southwestern merger plans, failed by the complaint of the Kansas City Southern obtained control of the "Katy" and St. Louis and Southern routes, has continued many bankers and railroad men that the I.C.C. will hold up the proposed reorganization of trunk line systems until Congress acts. Revised merger plans of the Van Sweringen and southwestern roads are pending.

Output of slab zinc by countries which furnish about 90 per cent of the world's output was 127,195 short tons in January, as compared with 127,885 in December and 127,222 in January 1927.

It is estimated that profit for 14 months ended December 31 is equivalent, after dividends on preferred and management stocks, to $1.50 a share on $10,000 common shares outstanding. The end of the fiscal year has been changed from October 31 to December 31. For year ended October 31, 1927 net profit after depreciation, interest, federal taxes and reserve of $1,000,000 for contingencies, was equivalent to $2.23 on $25,116 shares.

Prairie Oil and Gas reports net income for 1927 of $2,679,222 as against $15,962,367 in 1926.

Find Canoe Belonging to Age of Bronze

A boat, tied to its landing wharf for 3,000 years, has been found buried under six feet of peat in an ancient bog in upper Sumbia, according to Dr. Oscar Parei, a Stuttgart archaeologist. It is a dugout canoe about fifteen feet long, hollowed out of the trunk of a giant oak. The sides, Doctor Parei says, were shaved down to a surprising thinness. Several paddles were found in it. A number of earthen vessels and bronze objects found in the bog around it date the boat as of the Bronze age, about 1800 B. C., contemporary with the siege of Troy and the reign of Solomon in Jerusalem.

The boat was found at the end of one of three long wharves which ran back to the vicinity of the remains of a number of houses. Apparently there was once a village on the edge of the bog, on solid ground separated from the open water of the lake by a wide, marshy margin, which could be crossed only by these causeways. When the village site was abandoned, the vegetation in the bog and the lake continued to grow until the lake disappeared and the piling up of the dead leaves and stems buried all the works of the ancient men who lived there and used to go fishing in their dugout canoes.

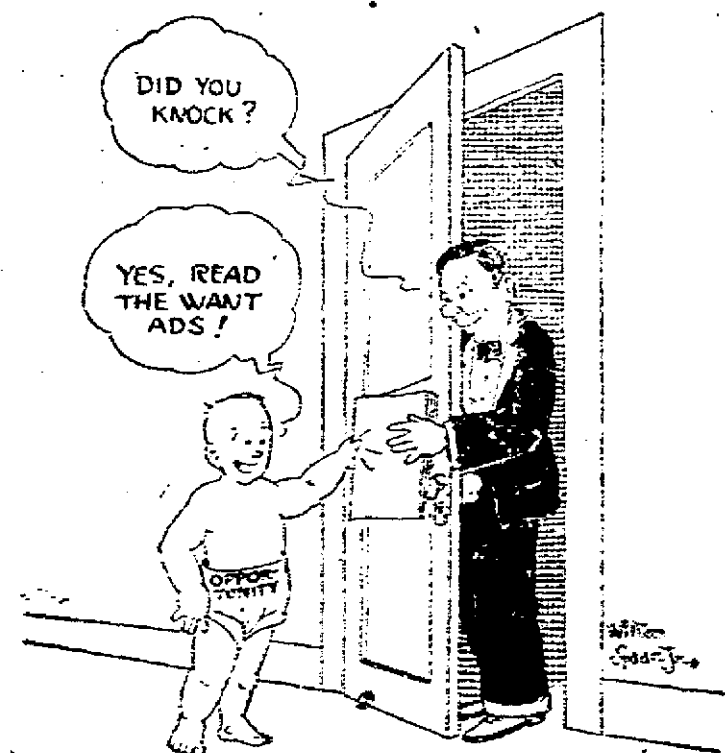

Knowledge of History Duty of Citizenship

There never was a time when the average man needed to know more about the continuity and tradition of his race than in this age, when he is beset on all sides by agitators who seek to trample under foot anything that custom has hallowed or experience taught us to be true. Bacon advocated the reading of history as making men wise, and it is to be hoped that this revival of interest in our country's story is being undertaken in the spirit that ought to underlie all our reading, not that of blind acceptance, or that of contradiction, but with an open, alert mind, so that we may weigh and consider well before lending our support to or withholding it from any proposed political reform. The reading of history is the first duty of citizenship.—Exchange.

HITTITE RELICS FOUND IN TEMPLE

Explorers Make Rare Find in Palestine.

Jerusalem.—Fresh evidence of the time when possession of Palestine was disputed between the Hittites and Egypt has been unearthed by the Pennsylvania University museum's expedition under the direction of Alan Rowe.

The latest discoveries have been made from Tel el Hesi, the great mound which covers the Biblical Beth-Shean. The expedition has previously discovered hieroglyphic inscriptions of the Pharaohs Seti and Ramesses II. Rowe has since unearthed six Canaanite temples ranging from the time of Thothmes III to Ramesses II. The period involved was when the new Egyptian empire was at its height.

All the temples contained objects from surrounding countries: Pottery and seals from Cyprus and Amolita and serpent-cult objects which apparently originated in Babylon.

The same story is told by the latest discoveries from the two temples of Thothmes III. A beautifully made bronze military standard bearing the head of the Goddess Hathor was included.

It is presumed the garrison included a Hittite division, as well as the division of Ita and Sutech, which are mentioned in the Beth-Shean inscriptions.

A valuable blue faience ring with the eye of Horus was included among the jewelry, and also one of the finest lapis lazuli scarabs ever found. One of the most fascinating treasures found in the temples was an Egyptian officer named Kamesi West Kephesh, cut in a door jamb.

The officer was honored as a builder of one of the later temples, which, though erected in the time of Ramesses II, was probably standing three centuries later.

It has been identified by Rowe with the "House of Iagon," in which Saul's head was hung after his defeat in the battle of Gilboa.

Sacrificial equipment of one of the earliest temples constitutes probably the most important of all the findings. Remains of a sacrifice were found in the bones of a three-year-old bullock. The equipment, with the sacrifice, was complete.

The SANDMAN STORY

THE MIGHTY MOOSE

"GREATEST of all the members of the deer family," said the Sandman, "is the moose. He is the most splendid of all the deer in the great wide world and he is splendid in both strength and in brains. The moose is called Mooswa in Indian talk, which means wood eater. For the moose loves strange things to eat, you see."

"Sometimes the timber wolves fight this mighty monarch, but oh, the moose is brave and few can win a victory over him."

"As you know, he roams the great northern parts of the country and he loves the woods and the quiet streams away from people."

"If he has been taught from a baby moose to be with people he is not afraid."

"But he is not anxious to take any chances if he has not been used to people. For to him people are creatures with guns and guns cannot be fought against."

"The moose is very tall when he is full grown. He is brownish gray in color and he runs very quickly. The baby moose is only seventy-five pounds in weight when born, which isn't much considering that later on a moose becomes so enormous."

"A mother moose keeps her little calf with her for some time, and he

"Mooswa Lived in a Low Swamp Near a Wooded River."

follows her about, walking everywhere after her, though once in a while she leaves him covered up in the thick woods while she goes off marketing by herself.

"If the baby moose is a boy she is very careful that his father shall not see him, for a father moose is very jealous of a little boy in the family, fearing the boy may become a greater moose than he is."

"It is when the boy is but a baby, too, that the father is so jealous, and so the mother keeps them separated so that her darling baby moose will not be killed by its father."

"But the moose I am going to tell you about was named Mooswa the Great."

"He had lived and roamed the woods where it was cold and wild, but still where people came, more and more every year, with great guns to hunt the moose family."

"Many members of his family had been moving farther and farther north. They were brave, but they did not want to take any chances and they did not consider guns fair enemies somehow."

"So they had left and Mooswa the Great had few companions or even few relatives in his neighborhood."

"Mooswa lived in a low swamp near a wooded river and there the willow twigs, which Mooswa loved so dearly, were delicious. These were fine in the winter time and in the autumn."

"Into the heart of the great king of animals had come love, and he wondered if the beautiful Miss Mooswa, whom he had seen and admired would become his mate."

"So he went, his great heart beating foolishly, to see Miss Mooswa and he told her of his love."

"I so wish you would do me the great honor to become my mate," he said.

"It would make me so happy to wander with you through this winter which is now approaching. We could travel far, we could see so much. Perhaps we could go farther north, where the guns are fewer and yet where still there are willow swamps."

"We could see so much of the great forest world and of the deep underbrush lands."

"Miss Mooswa had for some time admired Mooswa the Great. She had admired every bit of his splendid strength and beauty and when she heard his splendid voice making love to her it was all she could do to keep from crying—so happy was she."

"So off went Mooswa the Great, with his bride. He shed his shaggy like antlers in the early winter and began growing new ones, but all the time they wandered through the snow, farther north where guns would not put an end to their happiness."

WHAT SHALL I DO WITH MY EDUCATION?

WHAT shall I do with my education? What college graduate has not asked the question? The four long years of study are an experience of the past. What am I going to do with it?

If a college course is of any value, it surely should enable one to discover one's adaptability for definite kinds of work. When this is not true, young men and women frequently choose a life's work at the point of least resistance. A passing fancy may influence the decision, leaving the tragedy of the mistake to be discovered later.

Certainly a more tragic condition cannot be imagined than when a man trained as a physician realizes at the age of forty-five that he has made a mistake and should have been trained to be an engineer. To be compelled for economic reasons to give one's life to a work in which one has no vital and enthusiastic interest is anything but a happy experience.

Why not determine a life's work before going to college. The early choice is most likely to be the right one. Procuring an education is not a difficult task. To decide the purpose of an education is far more difficult, especially if that decision is postponed beyond the adolescent years.

Is a college education a benefit in the business world? This question is asked on the average, by at least eight out of every ten young men and women. The seriousness with which the question is discussed is indicative of a desire on the part of young people to make the best possible preparation for life's venture.

The question cannot be answered categorically. To some persons it may be a detriment, to others a great advantage.

The answer depends upon the person who asks it.

Growth of Hair

When the individual is in good physical condition and the scalp is in good condition, the hair should grow from three-eighths to three-fourths of an inch a month until it has reached the length of 12 to 15 inches, when its rate of growth is reduced one-half. Hair grows faster in warm weather than in cold, and during the daytime rather than the night.

Tree Transplanting

It is possible to transplant a tree 40 feet tall if it is properly handled, and prepared with enough soil. The Department of Agriculture says that a tree as large as three feet in diameter can be transplanted.

No Mystery, Says Hendershot

Force Used in His Motor Same as That Which Moves Compass Needle—Radio Has Nothing to Do With It—Will Confer With Lindbergh in New York.

Philadelphia, Feb. 27, 1928.—Charles C. Hendershot, 29 years old, of Philadelphia, Pa., inventor, who claims his motor has solved the mystery of the Lindbergh kidnapping, was today eliminated from reports on his invention, which he developed while experimenting on an effort to produce an improved compass.

"Make it clear to the world," he said, in commenting on stories circulating, "that radio and its allied phenomena have nothing to do with my motor."

"The force that runs my motor is the same force that pulls the needle of a compass around—and there is nothing mysterious about that," Hendershot revealed today when he took up aviation three years ago he discovered that the "ultimate development of aviation depended largely upon the discovery or invention of an absolutely true and reliable compass" and that his first experiments were an effort to develop such an instrument.

"The ordinary magnetic compass does not point to the true north—it points to the magnetic north, and varies from the true north to a different extent at almost every point on the earth's surface."

"There is another compass, the magnetic induction compass, that indicates the true north, but it must be set before each flight, and it is not always reliable. I really got down to work on the idea about a year ago, and last fall I began to see that I was headed toward my goal."

"I found that with a pre-magnetized core I could set up a magnetized field that would indicate the true north, but I didn't know just how to utilize that in a compass and I set out to find it."

"In continuing my experiments, I learned that by cutting the same line of magnetic force north and south I had an indicator of the true north, and that by cutting the magnetic field east and west I could develop a rotary motion."

"I now have a motor built on that principle that will rotate at a constant speed, a speed pre-determined when the motor is built. It can be built for any desired speed, and a reliable constant speed motor is one of the greatest needs of aviation."

"The motor I demonstrated at Detroit has a speed of 1,200 revolutions per minute and develops 45 horsepower on a block. The motor is now in New York."

Asked what he intended doing with his motor, Hendershot said he had decided to do nothing without first consulting the Guggenheim Foundation, and his attorney, Colonel Henry Breckinridge, who also is Colonel Lindbergh's attorney.

Hendershot will go to New York Tuesday to confer with Colonel Lindbergh and his backers, he said. He denied knowledge of a corporation reported to be in the process of formation to exploit his invention.

The average man is not inclined to count the cost until he gets the bill.

Do You Know What a Woman of 30 Should Weigh?

It all depends on her height of course.

If she is five feet seven inches in height she should weigh according to the best authorities 142 pounds.

If she is 5 feet 5 inches her normal weight is 124 pounds.

If she is 5 feet 3 inches she should weigh 107 pounds.

It's dangerous to be always striving to grow thin—the Adirondack Mountains and health resorts everywhere are filled with health-shattered women who will tell you that it doesn't pay to be too thin.

That is why so many thousands of underweight men and women are putting their faith in McCoy's Tablets.

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this iron-clad guarantee. If after taking 4 sixty-cent boxes of McCoy's Tablets or 2 One Dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

The name McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets has been shortened—just ask for McCoy's Tablets at any drug store in America.

General Electric Refrigerator

THIS simplified General Electric Refrigerator works automatically, quietly, economically. It needs no attention—not even oiling. Inside the hermetically sealed casing that holds all the mechanism, there is a permanent supply of oil.
